THE PILLARS OF WISDOM: A MANIFESTO

by GLO

I. THE DEMOLITION IS NOT AN ACCIDENT

Everything that worked has been systematically replaced by something that doesn't.

Old-growth wood — centuries old, dense, indestructible — replaced by cultivated fast-growth timber that rots in ten years. This note is not about wood.

The 1967 quarter was 90% silver. Five of them bought a day's labor. Today's quarter buys nothing because it is nothing — a token issued by people who hate you, to pay you with fake value for real time.

In 2009 the government took 690,000 working cars and poured sodium silicate into their engines. Not recycled. Destroyed. They called it stimulus.

They banned raw milk because it might make you sick. They put titanium dioxide in tampons. They replaced tallow with canola oil and called it healthy. They put fluorescent lights in every office, every school, every hospital — lights that flash at micro intervals and cause brain damage — and they called it modern.

None of this is accidental. There is a word for what's happening. The word is demolition.

II. THE BODY DOES NOT LIE

Skin mirrors the liver. Posture reflects fascia. Fat distribution follows hormonal state. Jaw structure reflects airway health.

A 1990s bikini video shows women with normal thyroid function and no signs of xenoestrogen exposure. Vintage softcore content now reads less as sexy and more as a grim archive of what the food supply was before they poisoned it.

The body is the one honest instrument you have left. When everything around you is manufactured — the news, the currency, the politics, the food — your body still tells the truth. Learn to read it.

Your skin is your biggest organ. It absorbs what you put on it. Showering in tap water is exposing yourself to a chemical cocktail. Your liver is under siege. Your dopamine system has been hijacked by pornography. Your testosterone is being suppressed by plastics, seed oils, and a medical establishment that profits from your deficiency.

This is not paranoia. This is biology.

III. THE NORMIE IS NOT YOUR ALLY

The normie does not believe in conspiracy theories — not because they are untrue, but because the normie does not have the emotional fortitude to accept them.

The normie forgot Covid happened. The normie forgot the Epstein files. The normie will forget the next thing too, because the normie's primary biological function is to forget.

By the time a normie finally realizes they were psyoped, they have already been psyoped into the next psyop.

They will do another fake pandemic. They will release another fake vaccine. The normies will fall for it again. Not because they are stupid — some of them are intelligent — but because compliance is their survival strategy. The normie is socially calibrated to believe whatever reduces friction in their immediate social environment.

This is why arguing with normies is a waste of your time. You are not going to debate them into consciousness. Consciousness is not a debate. It is a threshold you either cross or you don't.

Stop trying to convert them. Identify them. Route around them. Protect your information environment from their presence.

IV. WHAT THEY DID TO WOMEN

Society did not liberate women. It destroyed them and called it liberation.

Birth control that ruins hormonal health. Tampons laced with carcinogens. Casual sex with men who don't respect them. Plant-based diets devoid of nutrients. Cosmetics with 150 carcinogens. Soul-crushing 9-to-5 jobs. Liberal universities that waste the best and most fertile years of the most capable women on PowerPoint presentations.

Before the smartphone, women went to the beach to meet men. They actively enjoyed being approached. The smartphone destroyed the female attention economy the same way pornography destroyed male dopamine signaling.

Women are vulnerable to propaganda because of their innate desire to be sexually attractive. If the media says a political position is the most attractive social signal, most women will adopt it publicly. This is not a flaw. It is a feature of the female psyche that was weaponized against them.

The women who became politically radicalized — ask any one of them why they hate men. Ninety-five percent of the time it traces back to a sexual grievance. An accumulation of bad situationships, of giving themselves to men who didn't value them, of a market that commodified them and then discarded them.

Women are victims of the system. They are also, in their current state, its primary enforcers. Both things are true. The solution is not to hate them. The solution is to understand what was done to them — and to refuse to participate in it.

V. THE INFRASTRUCTURE PROBLEM

There is no difference between inflationary money printing, vote stuffing, and affirmative action.

They are all the same operation: the devaluation of real labour by the introduction of fake tokens. Whether the fake token is a dollar, a vote, or an SAT point is irrelevant. The mechanism is identical. Your work — which is to say your time, which is to say your life — is being consciously and deliberately devalued by people who benefit from that devaluation.

The counterfeit civil servant is the clearest illustration. They dress like firefighters. They sit in firehouses. They receive firefighter salaries. But when your house burns down, it's your problem. They supported the policies that put them there. They destroyed the careers of anyone who objected. And when the city burned, they stood and watched.

This is not incompetence. Incompetence is random. This is a system working exactly as designed.

VI. THE CONTROLLED OPPOSITION

Jordan Peterson told a generation of young men to clean their rooms and stop blaming society. Turns out society was rigged at every level in every conceivable direction.

He is not your ally. He is a pressure valve. His function is to redirect your legitimate anger into personal responsibility, so that you fix yourself rather than fix the structure that is breaking you.

Elon Musk owns the platform where you speak freely and also the platform where the government tells you what to think. This is not a contradiction. This is vertical integration.

Nick Fuentes exists to make the real conversation seem adjacent to something cartoonish and discrediting. Anyone who takes you to the threshold of real understanding and then stops is not your teacher. They are your ceiling.

Beware the man who tells you to calm down. The appropriate response to what is happening is not calm.

VII. THE ONLY HONEST SPACE

The man on Substack who calls you a homo took the time to understand your worldview well enough to identify the exact type of homo you are.

That is more than your family will ever do. They are too busy watching sportsball.

This platform is not pure. It is full of women using their faces to buy subscribers, of Christian conservatives who are secretly just progressives with different aesthetics, of edgelords who will block you the second you push back past their comfort zone. Normies need a badge of shame on their profile. They should be identifiable.

But it is still the only space where the conversation moves toward truth rather than away from it.

The liberal dream is to expert-manage you from a safe distance. To orbit you from a position of false neutrality. To use decorum as a shield against accountability. Their absolute nightmare is that you close the distance and push back.

Close the distance. Push back.

VIII. WHAT REMAINS

The Westboro Baptist Church was right about everything before any of us understood how bad things had gotten.

The CIA killed nu metal because it was too empowering for young men.

Dinosaurs definitely could not have reproduced the way the textbooks describe. This is a bigger conspiracy than 9/11.

Your new year's resolution should not be to work harder. Work is not the answer. The system has been designed to consume your productive energy and return as little as possible. Working harder inside a rigged game makes the game richer.

The answer is clarity. The answer is a body that works. The answer is people around you who can handle real information without flinching. The answer is refusing to pretend that what you can clearly see is not happening.

They are counting on your compliance. They are counting on your politeness. They are counting on you deciding it's easier to go along.

Decide it isn't.
